Objectives:

- To orient students to understand the working of a hospital with regards to psychiatry and psychology practices
- To help students gain an immersive experience of different cases, protocols, and functioning of a hospital
- To make students confident to take up a career in the field of Clinical/Health Psychology
- To gain an insight on how to establish a department at the hospital level and understand the work culture in the health sector

Summary:

The students were given a warm welcome to visit one of the biggest hospitals at Mysore, JSS Hospitals which treats thousands of patients on a daily basis. The patients who come there are mostly from a humble economical class and the hospital caters very well without compromising the efficacy of treatment to the patients.

The students were channeled to visit the Clinical Psychology department which is headed by Dr. Manoj Kumar Pandey. The team of psychologists at the department addressed the students and introduced the different methods that are used to treat the psychiatric patients. The students were given a tour in and out of the department and were also allowed to visit few psychiatric patients who were kept in a highly secure ward for an experiential learning. Shortly after the tour, the team briefed about the different work practices that are involved while handling a psychological patient, and the variety of cases which may be challenging to the psychologists. This invoked the curiosity within the students to understand how to handle patients that are challenging and soon their doubts were addressed by different professionals effectively.

The last part of the visit, was a face-to-face session with the head of the department, Dr. Manoj Kumar Pandey, who spent a portion of his valuable time in addressing different questions that were posed by the eager-to-learn students. This session was definitely an icing on the cake moment as there were a lot of eye-opening learning. The speaker was so patient in trying to explain what Clinical psychology was all about, and what are the different challenges that are faced by the professionals in a day-to-day life and gave different case studies which indeed helped students get an in-depth understanding of the department, and career itself.

In conclusion, this field visit was really effective as most of the students had a clarity over the line of work they needed to get into in the future which was the very crux of this field visit.

Different patients undergo therapies in these consultation rooms, and to diagnose their mental health, they are taken to assessment rooms.

Students were given an in-house tour, and also were briefed about important protocols while meeting patients. The students were also allowed to visit psychiatric patients who were kept in highly secure ward.

Students were given the liberty to ask any questions pertaining to the subject, and they were effectively addressed at every level of the tour. The students were also debriefed about different cases, and had a face-to-face session with Dr. Manoj Kumar Pandey, HOD of Clinical Psychology.
